

TIMBERfacts

It goes without saying : timber is a 100% natural product. Therefore no two pieces will be exactly the same.

This same logic applies when we consider timber mantelpieces. The natural variations and characteristics such as grain and the overall tonal qualities of wood used in the making, will dictate the colour of the finished mantel after staining and polishing. While we do our best to maintain an even consistency, it's also not uncommon for wood stain to vary from batch to batch.

At Agnews we pride ourselves in using the best possible selection of Kauri pine to ensure our mantelpieces become treasured possessions for our customers as well as envied and admired by our competitors. It's important to note that these beautiful timbers will continue to deepen in tone as they gracefully age.

So keep in mind that the mantels you see on display in the showroom are intended to be an indicator to the colour of your newly-acquired mantelpiece. It will continue to deepen and become richer in colour as it provides a focal point of style and warmth in your home.
